

Training Grounds Rules

The Bryan-College Station Retriever Club has the great privilege of leasing land on an annual basis to provide training grounds for our members. We expect our club members to treat this land with the greatest amount of respect and responsibility. Any actions contrary to that may cause the club to lose this privilege.

Members will sign a contract stating they will abide by these rules. If a club member is found by the Board to be in violation of the rules, then their privileges, use of the training ground, and/or membership will be forfeited. The Sheriff's department in jurisdiction will be sent the names, vehicle type and license plates of members whose privileges have been revoked. They will be considered trespassers.

1. Only Qualifying Members may use the Club Training Grounds. See Amendment 1 to the By-Laws and Constitution.
2. Leave the property cleaner than you found it. Pick up all shotgun hulls and other trash – even if they are not yours.
3. Do not harass livestock, and under no circumstances let your dog chase cattle. If your dog is a cow chaser, do not bring it to the training grounds until you have corrected the problem.
4. Do not cross any boundary fences into other property. DO NOT trespass.
5. The individual member is responsible for any damage done to fences gates or other property by him, his dog, or his invited guest
6. Helpers who are non-members may be invited to assist in training, but no more than two at a time. If an immediate family member (of an individual member) is not a member, then they will not be counted as a non-member guest.
7. Migratory bird hunting, if permitted by the landowner, is allowed, only during the state and federal seasons. No other hunting will be allowed.
8. Stay on roads during wet weather and try to keep from driving off roads as much as possible during other times.
9. If you see anything unusual, such as a sick cow, down fence or gate, un-authorized people on the land, immediately contact a Board member.

New members will be allowed to use the training grounds until such a time as they can become qualified. This should help encourage new members to reach a qualified status.
